

GLENN CUNDARI

From North Bay, Ontario, and born into a family with a natural affinity for learning and an insatiable curiosity, Glenn's early years were marked by a profound need to want and know more. This trait laid the foundation for what would become a lifelong dedication to empowering others through the art of coaching.

When Glenn founded COACH+, it wasn't just a company but a movement. Under his stewardship, COACH+ evolved into a dynamic company, working in 27 countries and helping support the global movement about how coaches are trained, supported, and inspired. As a former Coaching Association Coach Developer of the Year winner, Glenn's vision is clear: Reimagining and realizing the full potential of coaches and cultivating a new generation of skilled and deeply empathetic coaches who understand their version of authentic leadership.

But what sets Glenn apart most is his empathy and understanding of every interaction, whether with seasoned professionals or budding coaches. He listens intently, speaks purposefully, and acts with an intention to serve others.

Professionally, Glenn's highlights include being a two-time national head coach at the Special Olympics World Summer Games and a graduate of the only Coach Developer Academy in the world in Tokyo, Japan. Personally, he is surrounded by his wife and two adult children, who all work full-time in sport :)